

BlueJeans

Details:

BlueJeans is a cloud [1]-based video conferencing service that allows people to join in from all different devices. This includes things like: mobile devices, web browsers, room systems, and other software based video clients. So it doesn't matter if someone is at their desk on a computer and someone else is on a bus on their mobile phone. They can both join in the same video call.

Every BlueJeans member has a private "meeting room" in the cloud. They use this to schedule and host conferences and meetings.

Users simply log in, enter their meeting details, invite people (up to 100 participants) and choose the device they want to connect with. You can also share content like, spreadsheets, pictures and videos. It's great for work, school and your social network.

BlueJeans offers high definition video (up to 1080p) and allows you to record and share your meetings. You can also exchange private text messages or participate in group chat while the video conference is happening, without disturbing the flow of conversation.
